Rally conflict reflects abortion views

By AMY K. STEWART
Senior Reporter
and Associated Press

A shouting match erupted between pro-choice and pro-life demonstrators as both groups rallied in the Utah Capitol Rotunda Monday to observe the 17th anniversary of Roe vs. Wade, the U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

The pro-life group rallied at 10 a.m., and the pro-choice group gathered at noon. The argument began as the pro-choice rally that drew about 250 cheering, sign waving people started to dissolve.

Protesters holding photographs of fetuses they said had been aborted confronted pro-choice demonstrators. One sign-holder cried that the Roe vs. Wade decision had "made these legal."

A pro-choice advocate replied, "You probably would have been on Hitler's side." Security guards broke up the disturbance.

Jeena Nilson, vice president of Right to Life of Utah, said, "We gather in memory of unborn children. We are killing the weak and the helpless — we as a nation should not be doing this."

The Right to Life group is working on getting a bill passed by the legislature that would "concentrate on banning abortion as a means of birth control," Nilson said.

Less than 1.5 percent of the 4,149 abortions performed in Utah in 1988 were the result of rape, incest or to save the mother's life, Nilson said. "It is being used as a method of birth control in Utah," she said.

The group is also hoping for a bill which would "make provisions for civil prosecution instead of criminal prosecution," so those who perform abortions cannot claim excuses of liability if women are harmed, Nilson said. "One in every three women who have abortions will never bear children again. The bill will prosecute the traffickers, not the women."

Don LeFevre, spokesman officer for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, said the Church's stand on abortion is that it is "among the most serious transgressions and is acceptable only in cases of rape, incest, when according to medical authorities the fetus has such severe defects that it will not live beyond birth, and when the health or life of the mother is in jeopardy."

Karrie Galloway, director of Planned Parenthood of Utah, said she considers abortion a moral issue. "There is absence of morality in forced parenthood and pregnancy as a punishment," she said. "We believe that reproductive freedom is the most basic of human rights."

Galloway said many anti-abortion groups are saying they are for choice. "But what they define as their 'choice,' is the choice of keeping the baby or putting it up for adoption. That's so limited a choice," she said.

Galloway recently gave birth to her second child. "My family values are strong — families are important to most of us. But if what is so enjoyable is not done in a way which would enhance family life, then it is not good," she said.

"We trust women and men will make good decisions with their problems," Galloway said. "The whole foundation of our country is built on freedom of choice."

Galloway said she believes sex education and family planning is needed as a preventive for abortion.

Michelle Parish-Pixler, executive director of the Utah chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said there is a need for "non-sectarian" public school instruction on sex, pregnancy, contraception and abortion.

Galloway said issues are tough in Utah because it is a conservative state. "But I think a majority in the state are pro-choice just like the other states. Our pro-choice rallies are very well attended," she said.

Doug Bischoff of Gov. Norm Bangerter's office said the governor believes "the question of abortion is fundamentally a question of the ethical sensitivity of our society."

However, Utah law already follows the Missouri law that resulted in the Supreme Court's Webster decision last summer.

Roe v. Wade remembered by crowds

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush assured tens of thousands of anti-abortion demonstrators Monday that "this president stands with you," as both foes and supporters of legalized abortion marked the 17th anniversary of the landmark Roe vs. Wade Supreme Court decision.

Bush, declaring his own "deep conviction" against the court ruling that legalized abortions, spoke for just 90 seconds by telephone hookup to a midday crowd of marchers who gathered at the Ellipse across from the White House.

"Before you begin the march, I want to take a minute to share my deep personal concern about abortion on demand, which I oppose," Bush told demonstrators, saying the anti-abortion movement reminds Americans "of the self-evident moral superiority of adoption over abortion."

"Let me assure that this president stands with you on this issue of life," he said.

Advocates of legal abortion, meanwhile, celebrated the anniversary of the 1973 Supreme Court decision at a luncheon fundraiser and in an earlier ceremony on the Mall remembering women who died as a result of illegal abortions.

"The public is on our side," said Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., a supporter of legal abortions. "It will be a cutting edge issue in this year's elections."

The anti-abortion demonstrators marched up Pennsylvania Avenue to the U.S. Capitol and Supreme Court after hearing Bush, some members of Congress and other speakers.

The U.S. Park Police estimated the crowd at 75,000; the annual march drew an estimated 67,000 people last year.

Legislators threaten to secede

Azerbaijanis mourn dead, continue defiance

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Hundreds of thousands of wailing, black-clad Azerbaijanis marched through Baku on Monday to mourn people killed when Soviet troops put down a nationalist revolt, and the republic's legislature threatened secession if Moscow did not pull out its soldiers.

In another move in defiance of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, local legislators declared Moscow's state of emergency void, and militants vowed to keep up crippling strikes until troops leave.

Also Monday, Communist leaders from Soviet Armenia and Azerbaijan took a tentative step toward ending 10 days of ethnic warfare, agreeing to withdraw armed groups from areas along their border, Tass said. But activists in Armenia and Azerbaijan said they were skeptical the truce would be kept.

The official Soviet news agency reported 12 more people were killed in ethnic clashes Monday on the border of the two republics, raising the toll since Jan. 13 to 167. Soviet officials said 83 of those were from the Soviet assault on the Azerbaijani capital on Saturday or skirmishes the previous day.

More than 500 have been wounded in the conflicts.

An emergency overnight session of the Azerbaijani Supreme Soviet legislature demanded the full withdrawal of Soviet troops from the republic, with the exception of border districts with Armenia, said Baku lawyer Viliyad Mamedov, who attended the 1 1/2-hour overnight session.

Lawmakers also demanded the lifting of the curfew and state of emergency in Baku and other areas of Azerbaijan, which Moscow imposed without the approval of Azerbaijani authorities, Mamedov said in a telephone interview.

If those demands are not met, Mamedov said, the legislature will consider voting to secede from the Soviet Union.

At Monday's mass rally in Baku, demonstrators carried posters reading, "Gorbachev is the butcher of the Azerbaijani people," and "Azerbaijanis will not succumb to tanks," said Shain Gajiyev, a Baku journalist.

Witnesses said throngs of mourners, as many as 2 million, bore coffins of Azerbaijanis killed in the weekend assault down the narrow streets to Lenin Square, now renamed Freedom Square in honor of the Azerbaijani nationalist cause.

The mourners, wearing black and carrying black-bordered portraits of some of the victims, then buried the victims at Kirov Park, overlooking the Caspian Sea.

A Soviet soldier keeps a look out as others prepare to restore a blown up bridge in the Askeran district of Nagorno Karabakh, Azerbaijan, recently.

The bridge was destroyed during ethnic violence in the area.

Charges filed against father in abandoning

Associated Press

YAKIMA, Wash. — A man who abandoned his mute, mentally retarded son at an Idaho rest stop last year was formally charged here Monday with first-degree assault of the boy.

Edward Donald Tuinman, 30, was brought here from Idaho during the weekend. He is serving a 10-year prison term in Idaho for willful desertion of a child after pleading guilty to abandoning his then-7-year-old son, Eddy Tuinman Jr., at a rest stop on Interstate 84 east of Boise.

Yakima County Superior Court Judge Robert N. Hackett Jr. set Tuinman's bond at $100,000 and scheduled trial for March 5 at his preliminary appearance Monday.

Tuinman was a migrant worker living with his wife and four children in Buena, about 15 miles south of Yakima, when the alleged abuse occurred. Tuinman's son was found at the rest stop Jan. 4, 1989, and was emaciated, covered with bruises and cigarette burns and wearing only a T-shirt, Idaho authorities said.

Young boy's injury sparks explosives amnesty program

By MARC NEAL
Universe Staff Writer

A 9-year-old boy, who was injured Saturday after a blasting cap detonated in his hand, has set an interesting introduction to an Explosion Amnesty Program being implemented in Utah County, said a Utah County Sheriff Detective.

"The boy hooked it (the cap) to his video game, thinking it was a battery," said Utah County Sheriff Detective Dennis Howard.

The boy ignited the cap by connecting it to the existing battery powering his hand-held video game, said Howard. He said the boy has since undergone surgery to reconstruct the remaining portion of his hand.

"His ring finger had to be reconstructed and pinned. And his palm was reshaped to conform to his ring finger, which is now the last finger on his hand," said Howard.

The program, sponsored by the Utah County Sheriff and Provo City Police, enables residents to give any explosive devices or ordinance to the police without questions, said Sgt. Jim Tracy of the UCSD.

As explosive material ages it becomes unstable and may detonate spontaneously, said Capt. Owen Quarnberg of UCSD.

"We know that schools use chemicals, such as picric acid, which becomes unstable with age and will spontaneously combust," said Quarnberg.

He said people may have explosives lying around and not know it.

"People may have explosives or old military ordinance sitting in their garage and not realize the danger," said Quarnberg.

Utah Chinese want to stay

Students lobby for bill allowing extension of their U.S. visit

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Chinese students studying in Utah have contacted Utah's two senators for help in overriding President Bush's veto of an emergency immigration bill.

Wei Zhang, Chinese student coordinator for the University of Utah, Brigham Young University and Utah State University, said the Emergency Immigration Relief Act sailed through the House and Senate in November without opposition, only to be vetoed by Bush.

The bill would have allowed Chinese students to amend their visa status and remain in the United States at the end of their schooling instead of returning to China.

Current restrictions of the typical J-1 student visa require a two-year return home before they could travel again to the United States, Zhang said.

But many of the 1,200 or so Chinese students in Utah participated in pro-democracy protests here while their peers in China were protesting, and dying, in Tiananmen Square.

"We're afraid if we go back we'll be severely punished. It has been announced by the Chinese government. They've stated the student union here is illegal, that it's counterrevolutionary," said one student who didn't want his name disclosed for fear of reprisals against his family at home.

Prison and even threats of death face Chinese students in the United States who have been linked with actions against the Chinese government, several students said.

When Bush vetoed the bill he offered an executive order as a substitution that offered basically the same privileges, but the tentative nature of an executive order has the Chinese students concerned.

"We appreciate Bush's offer, but we don't think it's the same thing. The president's protection is too weak," Zhang said. "(Bush) said he needed flexibility in conducting foreign policy. We understand the importance of flexibility, but as far as this issue is concerned the only flexibility he has is to withdraw the order, which he can do overnight."

A vote on the override is scheduled Wednesday.

The students have solicited help from University of Utah President Chase Peterson, who has written letters on their behalf to Sens. Orrin Hatch and Jake Garn, both R-Utah.

"Sen. Hatch and Sen. Garn gave us great help when this bill was passed in Congress," one student said.

Speaker says world marketing essential

By TRENTON K. RICKS
Senior Reporter

Utah's business community ought to learn to compete in Japan and Europe because foreign companies are preparing to compete in Utah. This was the theme of a day-long conference for Utah business people sponsored by Utah Rep. Howard Nielson.

"If the odds and culture change is so tough for companies that compete with Japan, you might ask why should I bother," Samuel Harrell, president of Semi/Sematech and a former director of Texas Instruments' Japanese operations, said in his speech titled "Competing with the Pacific Rim."

"Let me tell you, I looked at a list of Utah's chief businesses and two-thirds of those companies deal in industries targeted by the Japanese. You may not be after them, but they're after you," he said.

Harrell said Japan is realizing its 40-year old goal of becoming the world's economic leader. However, if a Utah company was willing to do what was necessary, Japan and the Pacific Rim offer opportunities for exportation and growth.

The dramatic changes in Eastern Europe and the 1992 merger of 12 Western European countries into the largest economic market in the world are two events that are bringing the world closer to a one-market society.

"People need to start thinking that selling Utah products in Europe is like selling Utah products in California," said Glen Hiemstra, the conference's luncheon speaker and president of Hiemstra International, a business consulting firm.

Charles Rudolph, the director of the Office of European Community Affairs of the U.S. Department of Commerce, said that if a company, no matter how small and localized, refuses to see the global market as its market, it will begin to have problems competing anywhere.

"There's no way around it, you have to globalize to compete," he said.

Nielson said the opportunities for Utah business in the world market were promising if the companies were willing to work hard for those opportunities.

"We have to have patience," Nielson said. "We've got to think in their terms and cater to their needs."

The conference was held in the Yarrow Hotel in Park City.

D.C. mayor begins alcohol treatment

WASHINGTON — Mayor Marion Barry, facing a cocaine possession charge, flew to Florida for treatment Monday while political speculation intensified back home concerning a possible City Hall campaign by Jesse Jackson.

Barry's spokeswoman, Lurma Rackley, said the mayor had checked into a center in West Palm Beach, Fla., to be treated for alcoholism. She had said the day before that details about his health would be kept private but "the most serious problem is alcoholism."

With Barry gone from City Hall for at least 30 days, talk and maneuvering in connection with the November elections picked up speed.

A Jackson associate said of the civil rights leader who moved to Washington last year, "I know he's getting a lot of pressure to run. I don't know if he's going to. A lot of the pressure is coming from Marion's people."

The mayor was arrested Thursday night and charged with possession of crack cocaine. He said on Sunday he would take steps to "heal my body, mind and soul." Barry, who did not specifically refer to a drug or alcohol problem in his Sunday remarks, left his home at dawn Monday accompanied by his wife Effi.

Barry's plans to announce his candidacy Sunday for a fourth term as mayor of the nation's capital were abruptly canceled after his arrest on the misdemeanor cocaine charge.

LaRouche's appeals refused by court

RICHMOND, Va. — The tax and mail fraud conspiracy convictions of political extremist Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr. were upheld Monday by a federal appeals court.

A three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals also upheld the convictions of six LaRouche associates in a case that stemmed from more than $30 million in loans raised by LaRouche's political supporters.

LaRouche proclaimed his innocence and that of his associates and said the case would be appealed further.

LaRouche was convicted in December 1988 on 11 counts of mail fraud, one count of conspiracy to commit mail fraud and one count of conspiracy to defraud the Internal Revenue Service.

He was sentenced to 15 years in prison and is being held at the Federal Medical Center in Rochester, Minn.

"This is a pure and simple travesty of justice," LaRouche said through spokeswoman, Dana Scanlon.

Palestinian activist freed, turmoil continues

JERUSALEM — Faisal Hussein, a leading Palestinian activist and potential peace negotiator with Israel, was freed from jail Monday. The United States had called his detention an obstacle to Middle East diplomacy.

In a related matter, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir threatened to resign if he loses a vote of confidence in his right-wing Likud bloc. Likud leaders will meet next month on motions by hard-liners that Shamir's peace plan be dropped.

Attorney General Yosef Harish ordered an investigation of allegations that Science Minister Ezer Weizman met illegally with high officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Shamir made similar accusations three weeks ago and forced Weizman out of the powerful Inner Cabinet.

Weizman represents the center-left Labor Party, which is in a tenuous "national unity" coalition with Likud. He cannot be tried unless Parliament lifts his legislative immunity.

Hussein was freed after three days of questioning about suspicions that he belonged to a "hostile organization" and gave other Palestinians $450 to buy military uniforms.

Congress prepares to tackle pollutants

WASHINGTON — The Congress returning Tuesday from a long holiday recess is all but sure to enact tougher air-pollution controls, but battles remain over how much the legislation should cost and who should pay.

"This year all interested parties know there will be a clean-air bill," said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., chairman of the Environmental and Public Works subcommittee that originated the bill and chief sponsor of the legislation.

The Senate will be confronted on its first day back at work with a complex and broad clean-air bill that calls for cutting acid-rain pollutants in half, much tighter controls on automobile emissions and greatly reducing toxic chemical releases. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, expects "vigorous debate" on the bill in the next few weeks. Final passage is likely to take considerably longer.

President Bush said last week that he's prepared to veto any legislation that goes substantially beyond the $19 billion proposal he sent to Capitol Hill last summer.

Schwarzenegger heads fitness council

WASHINGTON — Actor-strongman Arnold Schwarzenegger came to the White House on Monday and emerged in a new role: chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

The broad-shouldered, Austrian-born performer said his aim is to get all Americans, from the very young to the very old, to exercise regularly.

"President Bush is very much committed not only to have this a kinder and gentler nation, but also a very fit nation," said Schwarzenegger.

The one-time Mr. Universe said of the 65-year-old president: "He's 100 percent behind physical fitness. ... He's in tremendous shape himself."

Bush said in a statement that "I have asked Arnold to chair the council because I believe he is uniquely qualified to address and influence national health and fitness issues, especially among our youth."

The actor said his first objective will be "to get physical education classes back into schools." Illinois is the only state where physical education is a daily requirement, he said.

Ex-student is guilty in 'worm' case

Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — A jury Monday night found a suspended graduate student guilty of federal computer tampering charges for unleashing a rogue program that crippled a nationwide network of thousands of computers.

Robert T. Morris, 24, faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. He is the first person brought to trial under a 1986 federal computer fraud and abuse law that makes it a felony to break into a federal computer network and prevent authorized use of the system.

The jury returned its verdict at about 9:25 p.m. after nearly six hours of deliberations. It began considering Morris' fate at about 2 p.m., broke for dinner later and resumed deliberations at 7:30 p.m.

The old get older... and more numerous.

Caring for elderly to create more jobs

By SHAUNA PIERSON
Universe Staff Writer

Students may not know it yet, but gerontology could quickly become the profession of the future, said the director of gerontology studies at BYU.

Steve Heiner said gerontology, or the study of aging, is a multi-disciplined field in the health care industry that concentrates on care and treatment for the elderly.

According to statistics released by C. Allen and H. Brotman in 1981, in 1900 only four percent of Americans were elderly. By 1980, the growth of the U.S. population age 65 and over increased 11 percent.

By the year 2000, 32 million people, or 12.2 percent, are expected to have reached their 65th birthday. And by 2030, the percentage total will swell to 18.3 percent before it declines, show the statistics.

This increase is a result on the emphasis on better health and an active lifestyle, Heiner said.

The bulge in population is a result of the post-war baby boom, Heiner said.

After World War II, specifically between the years of 1946-1964, the birthrate soared. This baby-boomer generation is expected to have had their 65th birthday by the year 2030, he said.

Heiner said medical and technological advances have aided in the development of cures for many diseases that affected elderly people in the past.

These advancements have added time, though not always life quality. This leaves many older Americans in need of care, he said.

Because of statistics showing that one-third of working adults are caring for an elderly relative, many corporations are providing opportunities for care to employees in this situation through adult day-care centers or retirement centers, Heiner said. The Marriott Corporation is one of a few organizations responding to this increasing demand.

"We began purchasing several places and/or building retirement communities five years ago which offer elderly patients a continuum of care," said Betty Olson, Marriott general information director. "People are living longer and are healthier and need facilities," she said.

"Very few people are trained to deal with all the people growing old," said Robert Deloye, a senior from Syracuse, N.Y., majoring in geriatric administration. "Not many people know about this field. It's just like computers; it just has to catch on," he said.

The study of gerontology at BYU includes the five dimensions of aging — social, emotional, psychological, spiritual and physical — through classes and a comprehensive practicum, Heiner said. This practicum gives students practical experience that makes textbooks come to life. Each student is required to complete 140 hours of hands-on work, he said.

"You can talk about patients, but when you're actually out there is when you really learn," said Suzanne Halterman, a senior from Salt Lake City, majoring in health promotion.

Paul Kramer, a first-year graduate student from Madison, Wis., majoring in recreation management, hopes to take advantage of the Marriott Corporation opportunities through recreation. "Gerontology is a growing field with lots of possibilities," he said.

Nurses to explain first aid

By TAMMY WILLIAMS
Universe Staff Writer

The College of Nursing will "Celebrate Nursing" today by offering first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation demonstrations.

Because of the devotional today, "Celebrate Nursing" will be from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from noon to 2 p.m. in the ELWC Stepdown Lounge.

The College of Nursing will also be holding an open house in 520 SWKT to show the college and its facilities between noon and 2 p.m.

According to Linda Stevens of the Nursing Advisement Center, "Celebrate Nursing" is to help familiarize the students with nursing and the nursing program and gives students the opportunity to associate with those participating in the College of Nursing.

Information on becoming CPR-certified will also be available in the ELWC Stepdown Lounge.

The College of Nursing rates as one of the top 10 programs nationwide in terms of graduates passing the standardized exams, according to records.

The family and nurse practitioner program at BYU is also well known throughout the nation in nursing circles.

Romanian defector teaches at BYU

By TAMARA MCCOMBS
Universe Staff Writer

A former Romanian computer science professor is now an American citizen and is teaching at BYU.

Aurel Cornell had a nice home, a good job and was socially respected in his country. In spite of this, he defected from Romania in 1980 "because of what the whole world saw on TV; terror, political oppression, total lack of freedom," he said.

Cornell said it took him a long time to make the decision to leave. He got his first exposure to America in 1968 when the Romanian government sent him to the University of Illinois to do doctorate work.

Upon his return to Romania in 1970, he was denied traveling privileges, he said.

"They (the Romanian government) said I was infected with capitalism. Because of this I was very closely supervised by many unknown eyes," Cornell said.

He said it took him 10 years to get a passport again. When he finally did receive a passport, he visited the ETH Institute in Zurich, Switzerland.

He never went back to Romania again.

Cornell said that before defecting, he and his wife debated for a year whether he should leave the country. He said to leave the country would mean leaving his wife and daughter behind because they never would have been allowed to travel as a family. "It was a very scary period," Cornell said.

"Just to think you were emerging with two shirts and that's all. I had to have the courage to leave my history behind and to emerge into a new world which was full of uncertainty," he said.

In Switzerland, Cornell said he received assistance from two old friends, BYU professors Richard Ohran and Jens Johnson.

"I was helped. Without help it is very difficult," he said.

It took more than two years to work through diplomatic channels to get his wife and daughter out of Romania. Utah Sens. Orrin Hatch and Jake Garn helped him with legalities and diplomacy, he said.

While his wife was waiting to escape, her life was not easy, Cornell said. The government started to put pressure on her and her daughter.

At the beginning they told her that her husband had remarried and that she should divorce him. She refused and the government demoted her to a part-time position at her job, he said.

After she applied for a passport, they fired her from her part-time job. "If you have one company that hires you and fires you, you are dead in the ditch. You have no other options," he said.

Before she was allowed to leave, his wife was kicked out of her apartment, Cornell said.

"We were psychologically prepared; we knew this would happen," he said.

"We considered this part of the price we would have to pay for freedom," he said.

Commenting on the Ceausescu regime, Cornell said at the beginning of his reign, Ceausescu seemed to be open-minded.

"He fooled everybody in the East and in the West," he said.

Cornell said he was surprised at the events in Romania over the past few months.

"I would have bet my right arm and right leg that this (the revolution) would never happen in my lifetime," he said.

He said those in Romania should stay in the country.

Asian Awareness Week goes from today to Fri.

By KRISTA L. KARONY
Universe Staff Writer

The Society for Asian Studies has set up a variety of speakers for Asian Awareness Week in an effort to introduce BYU students to some of the many issues facing Asian countries in the 1990s.

Asian Awareness Week begins today. In addition to the speakers, a booth will be set up in the ELWC Memorial Lounge from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day through Friday.

One of the two guest speakers is Consulate-General Shunji Yanai of the Japanese Consulate in San Francisco. Yanai will be speaking on domestic political change in Japan on Thursday at 1 p.m. in 238 HRCB, according to a public communications release.

David Nanto, president of SAS, said Yanai loves Utah and enjoys skiing here, so it was relatively easy to get him to come to BYU.

David Alldredge, a businessman from Salt Lake City, will address the issues of business and politics between Hong Kong and China. Alldredge will be speaking Wednesday at 11 a.m. in 238 HRCB.

The remaining speakers are local faculty experts on Japan, China and Korea, Nanto said.

The speakers, along with the daily booth, are meant to interest both the layman and the expert in Asian affairs. "We picked some interesting speakers from a wide realm of disciplines," Nanto said.

The SAS is an academic and pre-professional club whose main interest is those students who would like to study Asia or pursue a career in Asian affairs. The club has a lot of participation and a variety of monthly speakers who offer insight and experience on a wide range of topics dealing with Asian countries, Nanto said.

BYU is filled with thousands of students who have lived in Asia and speak an Asian language, according to Asian Update, a monthly SAS publication. "We have the potential to become a university producing hundreds of Asian specialists every year," said Nanto.

A detailed schedule of Asian Awareness Week is available from the SAS in 273 HRCB.

Ukraine students want BYU pen pals; Soviets interested in 'sharing culture'

Or perhaps learn about a different culture?

Or even help somebody else understand your culture — all the while making a new friend?

If the answer is "yes" to any of the above questions, then you might be interested in having a pen pal in the Soviet Union.

According to a letter sent from the Soviet Union, 11 Soviet girls, would like to have pen pals from BYU.

Their ages range from 18 to 21 years.

They live in a town in northern Ukraine, and are second-year students at the SUMY Teachers Training Center.

"We can tell you plenty of interesting things about students' life, about our own study, our traditions," the letter stated.

Each of these girls can write back in English, and who knows, they might even teach you a few Russian words.

By forming a correspondence with them, it will help them gain a greater understanding of American culture.

But most importantly, you will have made a new friend.

Interested? If you are, then the addresses are available at the Campus desk in The Daily Universe. Call at 378-3630.

Snowboarding gains popularity

By REBECCA K. ARGYLE
Universe Staff Writer

People claimed it was a passing fad, yet snowboarding has developed into the fastest growing sector in the ski industry.

The sport has been around 15 years but has only become popular in the past six years. While skiing has reached a participation plateau, snowboarding is on a steady increase.

"Snowboarding has grown exponentially in the past five years with more than 300,000 snowboarders shredding the slopes in the United States this winter," said Stacy Gardner of the National Snowboard Inc. and the American Ski Association.

Ski resorts in Utah are beginning to recognize that snowboarding is a serious sport since it has become a new World Cup Event.

The resorts still prohibiting it are Alta, Deer Valley, Park City and Solitude. Sundance just opened to snowboarders this season under the direction of the new Mountain Manager Jerry Warren.

Snowbird snowboard instructor Hartley Shilton said there are days when one-third to one-half of the people on the mountain are on snowboards.

We are still behind in Utah, he said. In Europe, one-third of all lift tickets are sold to snowboarders.

In Vail, Colo., they have a staff of 60 snowboard instructors, said Shilton.

Sundance has only one snowboard instructor, Noelle Fuller.

There is talk of offering a snowboarding class at BYU in Winter 1991, said Fuller. Students need to let the department know if they are interested, she said.

Both Shilton and Fuller agree that a skiing background helps in learning how to snowboard.

"Take a lesson the first time. There are a few basic things you will need to know that you wouldn't think of on your own," Fuller said.

Beginners should consider the size and flexibility of the snowboard relating to their height and skill level just as in skiing.

Snowboarding has brought variety onto the slopes.

Many claim that the boarders are a safety risk and that they damage the slope grooming. Many others argue that claim.

A "hack" snowboarder does no more damage than a "hack" skier, said Shilton.

Fuller said that snowboarders make the slope's grooming better by rounding out the bumps in way that skis can't.

There is a negative attitude about snowboarding because it's new and some still think it's a fad, Fuller said.

"Fun is where you find it," Shilton said. I hate when someone picks up snowboarding then claims he will never ski again, he said.

Snowboarding doesn't eliminate skiing.

The individual is merely given another alternative. The snowboard alternative seems to be popular this winter.

New Warner Brothers film comes to Utah

'Roger and Me' focuses on GM layoffs

By DAVID D. JENSEN
Universe Staff Writer

'Roger and Me', a Warner Brothers film coming to Utah Feb. 9, is an angry, satirical documentary aimed at General Motor's automotive plant shut-downs in Flint, Mich.

The film was written, directed and produced by first-time film maker Michael Moore, a native of Flint.

In the film Moore says GM closed the plants, laying off 30,000 workers, in order to open factories in Mexico where labor was cheaper.

At a press conference in Park City, Utah, Moore said he'd previously covered the autoworkers' plight in his own newspaper, The Michigan Voice, which he owned and operated for ten years.

In the film, Roger said he had been fired as editor of Mother Jones for further publicizing the issue against the magazine owner's request.

The film is about Moore's attempt to confront GM chairman Roger Smith and bring him to Flint in order to show him how the layoffs had affected the town, which was the birthplace of both GM, and the United Auto Workers union.

Moore said his purpose in making the film was to "get out there and stir it up, mix it up," and make some people angry.

"I want people leaving inspired, ready to act. If you're a spectator in this country, it's not a democracy," he said.

General Motors spokesman John Mueller said the film doesn't deal factually with the situation in Flint, and is biased against General Motors.

Mueller quoted Roger Smith as saying it's sad that the movie pokes fun at people having a hard time, and doesn't give credit for all the positive things GM and Flint have been trying to do.

Mueller said it's true that 24,000 jobs were lost in Flint in several plant closures, but that many of those laid off were now employed elsewhere.

When questioned about the GM claims, Moore said they were nitpicking and missing the point.

"And yes I'm biased," he said, "I'm sick and tired of the fortune 500 running this country."

Animal rights activists in Southern California have criticized the film for a scene in which a Flint resident kills and skins a rabbit.

Moore said he defends the scene's inclusion because his filming it didn't cause it to happen. "Besides," he said, "two minutes later (in a news clip sequence on crime in Flint) a black man is shot. Nobody said anything about that. It's a metaphorical image of the skinning of the town."

Theatre managers have been leaving a seat empty in theatres for Roger Smith, but so far he hasn't gone to see the film. Moore quoted Roger as saying he didn't see the film because he didn't enjoy sick humor.

Moore said the film debuted in Europe, and was well received in Leipzig, East Germany where it prompted a four-hour debate in the theatre. Since its opening in the states, Moore said "Roger and Me" has grossed over $200 million.

Moore said he spent two years making the film, and financed it by scraping together whatever funds he could. He said the total production costs came to $260,000.

Moore said Warner Brothers had rented a 14-plex theatre in a nearby town and shown 'Roger and Me' simultaneously on all screens at a free screening for Flint residents. "It got standing ovations every time," he said. "People are happy their story is told."

Dance in Concert features 4 premiere works

Patrick Debenham and Roxanne Smith perform 'Once Upon,' a selection that will be featured in 'Dance in Concert' Jan. 25-27.

By KATHERINE HANSEN
Universe Staff Writer

A medley of talents will merge as this year's Dance in Concert presents a variety of styles including jazz, musical theatre and contemporary modern dance Thursday through Saturday.

The concert, under the direction of BYU dance faculty member Cathy Black, will feature advanced student performers as well as the Dancers' Company, BYU's touring modern dance troupe.

These dance students will perform eight pieces, four are premiere works. These include, "My Sister Beside," "Picturesque," "African Nightfall" and "Sanborn Et Al."

"My Sister Beside," a mood piece with music by Acoustic Alchemy, is "based on several types of personalities and how they relate to each other," said dancer and choreographer Lisa Arbon.

In contrast, "Picturesque" draws its energy from the vitality and freshness of Cajun music, according to creator Gigi Ballif Arrington, who became acquainted with Cajun culture during several visits to Louisiana.

"African Nightfall," the third premiere, features original music by BYU faculty composer Rick Chitwood and was inspired by the shape, lines and energy of ancient African sculpture.

"There came a time in my perception when African art was no longer strange and eerie but rather rich, honest and fascinating," said Prohovsky, who co-directs The Dancers' Company.

Marilyn Berrett, the choreographer of "Sanborn Et Al," the fourth premiere, said "Everyone who loves to dance will find a bit of their stuff in this piece."

Along with these four premieres are four other works including, "Once Upon," choreographed by Kathie Debenham and performed by faculty members Pat Debenham and Roxanne Smith, "Empty Window, Silent Wind," choreographed and performed by Les Ditson, "Doo Wah Girls," choreographed by Greg Simone, "Sad Clown," choreographed by Keith Johnson and performed by Pat Debenham.

This concert will appeal to many because "there are as many interpretations as there are people," said Black.

"There is no correct way to perceive this form of expression" she continued, "the styles are as different as the people who create them."

Black paraphrased a quote about modern dance, "When you hear a bird sing, you don't ask it why its singing, you just enjoy the song."

Performances begin Thursday in the deJong Concert Hall, HFAC and will run through Saturday.

BYU Women beat pressure, Depaul 78-60

By BRETT A. BLAKE
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU Women's Basketball team found its sixth win Monday night with a 78-60 victory over DePaul in the Marriott Center.

DePaul, which has been in and out of the women's top 35 rankings this season, dropped to 7-6. BYU, now 6-9, becomes the only unranked team to beat the Blue Devils.

"This was a great win for us," said Cougar coach Jeanie Wilson. "We had to prove to ourselves that we could beat a very good team. That's what we did."

DePaul managed to stay with the Cougars in the first half despite a 29.3 percent shooting performance from the field. The Blue Devils went into their locker room behind 30-27.

The Cougars allowed DePaul to battle back to a 32-32 tie early in the second half, but Cougar center Michelle Carter scored seven straight points. Danielle Taylor added two more and BYU pulled out in front to stay.

DePaul forward Beth Hasenmiller scored 15 of her 22 points in the second half, but as DePaul coach Doug Bruno said, "it was too late, BYU had control of the game by then."

Bruno said, "A lot of things hurt us tonight, but the BYU kids made it tough."

DePaul put the Cougars on the free-throw line 30 times in the second half and BYU converted 23 times with freshman Nikki Eyre shooting a perfect seven of seven in the closing minutes of the game.

Bruno said, "I think the key of the game was the play of Jennifer Beck. She did a great job handling our pressure."

Beck, a freshman guard from Burley, Idaho, scored nine points for the Cougars. Beck said, "We worked hard on the (full-court) press in practice. We knew it was one of their strengths, but we were prepared."

Carter led the Cougars, scoring 24 points and pulling down nine rebounds. Sophomore forward Lisa White dumped in 16 points and dished out four assists to aid in the Cougar win.

BYU became one of five teams to hold the Blue Devils to 60 points or less. The other teams include 13th-ranked Washington, 17th-ranked

South Carolina and 34th-ranked Toledo.

Wilson called the win a big one for BYU, but said the Cougars "have yet to meet (their) goal of winning two games back-to-back." The Cougars will have their chance to meet their goal this Saturday as they open High Country Athletic Conference play at the University of Utah.

Women's tennis team grabs victories against USU, WSC

By MEGAN E. OGILVIE
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU Women's Tennis team improved its record to 3-0 with victories over Weber State College and Utah State University last weekend.

Coach Ann Valentine said it was a "well-rounded weekend" with "good beginning matches." Only one match went into three sets during the two competitions.

BYU beat Weber State 8-1, losing the final doubles match 6-3, 7-6 (7-4), which paired BYU's Kim Chang and Jennifer Holmes against Pascale Thymain and Katarina Skyllberg of Weber State.

"BYU has a very good team," said Weber State Coach Keith Cox. He was pleased that the doubles matches were "exceptionally close."

In order for the men's tennis match against USC to begin on time Friday evening, Cox and Valentine agreed to shorten the last doubles game by playing the best of three tie-breaking sets. Valentine said it was the suggestion of Weber State.

The match lasted "15 minutes, including the warm-up," said BYU's Shelly Hannah, who teamed up with Anna Funderburk to beat Susie Ennega and Kristin Kelly. The scoring was recorded as 7-6 (7-1), 7-6 (7-5) and counted as a normal match.

Hannah played in the only three-set match against Weber State, beating Ennega 7-6 (7-5), 1-6, 6-0. She came back from a second-set deficit by changing her tactics. "I've been going through a lot of changes in my game," Hannah said.

After seeing that her strategy was not working, she "concentrated on hitting through the ball," she said. If something doesn't work, you change it, she said.

BYU did not have to change tactics against Utah State University Saturday afternoon. They swept the meet 9-0.

Valentine said, "My concern right now is that we are still not solidified with our doubles and singles line up." Mary Beth Young, ranked 24th in the nation, is currently playing doubles with BYU's new recruit, Monika Koblikova of Czechoslovakia.

"She's real positive," said Young. She said there is still a language barrier when communicating on the court.

"(Monika) is playing better and better every day," said Valentine. Koblikova played in the number-one spot against Utah State and second behind Young against Weber State.

Valentine hopes all her players are healthy by this weekend when BYU competes against 15th-ranked Miami and 8th-ranked Arizona State.

Valentine said Arizona State is an all-around solid team that excels in singles and doubles.

She said Miami has a diversity of strokes, which gives them a great variety of plays.

Golden Eagles defeat Flint Spirits 4-3

By COREY L. ANDERSON
Universe Sports Writer

The Salt Lake Golden Eagles ended a three-game losing streak Monday night, beating the Flint Spirits 4-3 in the Salt Palace.

Jason Lafreniere fired in the first goal for the Spirits after four minutes of play in the first period. The Eagles then worked for nine minutes before Stephane Matteau was able to even up the game.

Right winger Rich Chernomaz finished the scoring for the first period, giving the Eagles a one-point advance

Bryan Deasley opened the second period for the Eagles, scoring three minutes into play with a crisp slap shot from the blue line. The Eagles then held the Spirits until Salt Lake's Rick Hayward was called for elbowing, allowing Flint a one-man advance that led to their second goal.

Third-period action gave Rich Chernomaz his second goal for the night, giving him a total of 23 goals for the season. Chernomaz' spirits were later dampened, however, as he was penalized for high-sticking.

He expressed his disapproval for the call by intentionally breaking his stick over his knee on the way to the penalty box.

The Spirits' center, Rob Zanuner, scored after four minutes of play in the final period.

They could not catch the Eagles lead, however, despite pulling its goalie in the final minute.

The win puts the Eagles in a tie for third-place with Milwaukee in the IHL West Division. The Eagles have an overall season record of 20 wins, 22 losses and five tie games.

New Utah AIDS policy is approved for afflicted students and employees

By TONIA SHARP
Universe Staff Writer

Provo City School District recently approved a state-recommended AIDS policy dealing with employees and students with AIDS, said Dr. Vern Brimley, administrative assistant to the district's superintendent.

Though Nebo and Alpine School Districts could not review the state policy on board agendas, both have adopted individual policies. Alpine School District approved an outline in November 1987, said Michael Robinson, district spokesman.

The AIDS Advisory Committee to the Utah Department of Health was instrumental in forming a state policy, said Craig Nichols, state epidemiologist.

"(The Utah Department of Health) felt like it was important to develop a policy for dealing with students and school employees with AIDS based on fact rather than emotions," Nichols said. Based on the new policy, the identities of AIDS victims will not be disclosed. Anyone who discloses an identity, with the exclusion of the victim, will be guilty of a class A misdemeanor.

The policy also provides for a review committee which will consist of board members and the patient's physician to determine any restrictions for the student or employee.

Committee decisions can be appealed by committee members. The policy states that employees and students will be suspended for 10 days pending committee decision.

5 BYU freshmen obtain Coca-Cola scholarships

By CATHY CARMODE
Universe Staff Writer

Five BYU freshmen are among 150 students nationwide to receive the first four-year scholarships awarded by the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation, said Paul Richards, director of BYU Public Communications.

The foundation was established in 1986, and the first scholarships were awarded in 1989. The 150 high school seniors from 41 states were selected out of 50,000 applicants, according to a press release from the Coca-Cola Foundation.

Of 75 schools represented, BYU ranks fourth with five scholars, Richards said.

Stanford, Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology are the schools that have more recipients, with eight, seven and six respectively.

"It's quite an honor for BYU to have that many recipients from a national pool of applicants," Richards said.

Three of the BYU scholars are in a group of 50 designated "national scholars."

They receive $5,000 a year for four years.

They are Elaine White of Woodward, Okla., Laticia D. DeCory of Pine Ridge, S.D., and Jeff S. Anderson of Salt Lake City.

Two other BYU scholars are part of a group of 100 named "regional scholars," who receive $1,000 a year for four years.

They are Deborah R. Boyce of Stillwater, Okla., and Scott H. Clarke of Omaha, Neb.

The foundation selected 2,000 semi-finalists to attend a national final competition in Atlanta in April 1989. White, 18, a freshman majoring in math and chemistry education, said her experience with the scholarship interviews was positive. She also received the Trustees' Scholarship from BYU.

White said her time in Atlanta was enjoyable, but the interviews were difficult. "I had one judge laugh at me."

The whole thing was just to try to unnerve us," White said. "Then at the banquet that night, the judge that laughed at me sat at my table."

Anderson is now on a mission for the LDS Church.

In addition to the national scholar award, he received the Benson Scholarship, according to the Financial Aid Office.

Clarke, 19, a freshman majoring in chemistry, received the Trustees' Scholarship and the National Merit Scholarship in addition to his regional scholarship.

College man calls wrong number; flirts with 8-year-old and mom

Editor's Note: The names in the following article have been changed to protect the innocent — and especially the guilty.

By PAT BIRKEDAHL
Senior Reporter

"Hello," said the cheerful masculine voice on the phone. "Is Ditsy there?"

"There is no one here by that name. You must have the wrong number," I replied.

A moment later the phone rang again and I said, "No, I've never heard of Ditsy."

I couldn't say that for long. In the next few days we received numerous calls for Ditsy. We also received calls for her roommates, Thistle and Pearl.

"Hiya! Is Pearl there?"

"There is no one here by that name. You have the wrong number."

"But Pearl must live there. This number is on the new ward directory."

I told the young man that my husband, children and I had lived in our apartment with our phone number for two-and-half years and we were all sure Pearl did not live there.

"Hello. May I talk to Thistle?" asked a young man.

"There is no one here by that name."

He apologized nicely. I asked him if he knew Thistle's last name so I could get her correct number. He did and I called BYU information for her phone number.

BYU gave me my phone number. "We're sorry — that is the number we were given."

U.S. West information had Thistle's phone number. One digit was different from ours. I called the apartment of girls. Thistle answered the phone:

"Oh, golly gee, we're so sorry. We couldn't exactly remember our phone number when we filled out the information sheets. But we thought we got it right. It was close."

Close?!? Since when does "close" have any meaning related to phone numbers? I explained I'd be happy to give people who called us for her or her roommates the correct phone number but the number of calls we received was annoying, particularly when calls woke us up.

One day the phone rang and my eight-year-old daughter answered it. I heard her say, "This is Karen." The conversation lasted longer than usual. Finally she covered the phone and called to her sister:

"Anna, come to the phone. This boy wants to talk to my roommate."

I went to take the phone from Karen who protested, "But I share a room with Anna. Anna is my roommate."

I said into the phone, "You have the wrong number."

"Hi, Who's this?"

You don't want to know, I thought, but I said, "If you want Thistle, Pearl or Ditsy, the number you have is incorrect. The third digit should be a two, not a seven."

He still wanted to talk to me. I guess I might have felt complimented that he mistook me for a college coed, even if it was on the phone, but this was a guy who had been flirting with an eight-year-old. I assume he was unable to detect any difference in the level of conversation with Karen from that of the girls he was calling.

Somehow, I'm not surprised.

Ex-assistant football coach pleads guilty in 3 charges of Dec. cocaine distribution

By K. MICHAEL GOODMAN
Universe Staff Writer

At an arraignment in 4th District Court Friday Kirk Pendleton, a former assistant football coach and graduate student at BYU, pleaded guilty to three counts of distribution or arrangement to distribute a controlled or counterfeit substance.

Pendleton was originally told to appear in the Provo 4th Circuit Court in December.

However, after pleading not guilty, he was sent to the district court.

"Further down the line he (Pendleton) will receive a pre-sentence evaluation," said Lt. Keith Teuscher, a narcotics officer on the Provo Police Department. Pendleton is scheduled to be sentenced Feb. 16.

Teuscher said Pendleton was arrested by two undercover police agents in November. The police found Pendleton through tips and agreed to meet at a certain point where the drug would be brought. They met Pendleton and arrested him.

After his arrest, Pendleton was expelled from school, said Paul Richards, director of Public Communications at BYU. Richards said there has been no interaction between Pendleton and BYU since the arrest.

Pendleton was studying professional leadership in the College of Physical Education and was a wide receiver for the BYU football team from 1980 to 1983.

Utah Valley high school students to be educated by TV in fall 1990

By TONIA SHARP
Universe Staff Writer

Three Utah Valley school districts have approved a classroom television program, complete with commercials geared toward high school students.

Channel One, a 12-minute news program produced by Whittle Communications Co., is scheduled to be broadcast in various secondary schools throughout Utah Valley in the fall of 1990, said Michael Robinson, spokesman for Alpine School District.

The daily program includes news capsules anchored by teen-age newscasters and also features two minutes of advertisements, he said.

Not only is the program free to participating schools, but Whittle Communications will also provide two video recorders per school, a satellite dish and a television set for every 23 students, said Paula Pothén, a marketing director for Whittle Communications.

"The educational value behind (the program), in many ways, outweighs the value of the equipment," Pothén said.

In addition to Channel One, Pothén said, schools will have access to a classroom channel which will provide nearly 250 educational programs and documentaries throughout the year.

The Educator's Channel, an informational program for teachers, will also be available, she said.

Though seemingly a "good deal" for schools, controversy arose in the showing of commercials as part of an educational program, said Dr. Vern Brimley, administrative assistant to the superintendent of Provo City School District.

Schools are also required to guarantee broadcast to students 92 percent of the school year, Pothén said.

Alpine School District approved Channel One on a trial basis by a vote of four to one, said Robinson. Board member David Harvey expressed concern about the advertising included.

"I object to making students watch commercials as part of their educational experience," Harvey said. Similar concerns were voiced by patrons and board members of the Nebo and Provo districts.

Pothén told districts that advertising would be carefully monitored. "We realize that we have great responsibility because of all the students who will be watching."

She provided a list of excluded product advertising, varying from alcoholic beverages, feminine hygiene products and abortion clinics, to movies with an R or X rating.

To get a taste of the program's format, school districts were shown a sample broadcast featuring Valdez High School's students opinions on the Alaskan oil spill.

"I thought there were some interesting approaches," said Brimley.

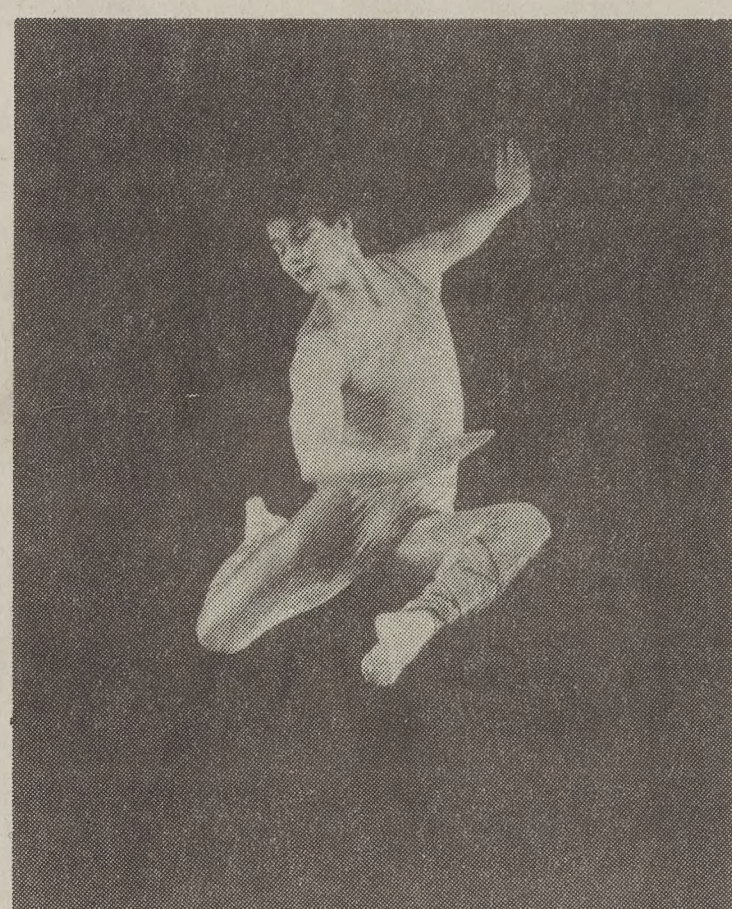

"The program provided a lot of informative news."

Sometimes termed "hip news," the show's upbeat nature helps teens to see how current news affects them, Pothén said.

"The students are listening to someone considered a peer telling them what is going on in the world," she said.

IBM announces an enhancement to the PS/2.

A high-speed loan.

If you're like most students, you're often running on empty when it comes to ready cash. That's why we've come up with the IBM PS/2[®] Loan for Learning. It's easy. It's fast. And it's affordable.

Interest rates are substantially lower than those of most consumer loans. Just 1.5% above the Prime Rate (as published in The Wall Street Journal).

Qualified students (or their parents), faculty and staff[†] can borrow from $1,500 to $8,000 for the purchase of an IBM Personal System/2[®].*

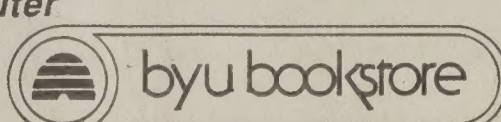

The one-page application makes it as easy as applying for a credit card.

Pay for your PS/2 in easy bites. Take five years to repay. Choose from two payment plans: Standard (fixed) or Graduated. Under the Graduated plan, you pay as little as $33.32 a month for a PS/2 Model 30 286 preloaded with software.

Here's the smart way to get the money you need, for the PS/2 you need. Visit your campus outlet for an application or call the Nellie Mae Loan Hotline at 1 (800) 634-9308.

Loan packets available at the BYU Bookstore Computer Department, or call 373-8180.

Faculty, Staff, & Students are eligible.

[†]The loan offer is available only to qualified students, faculty and staff who purchase IBM PS/2's through participating campus outlets.

*Applicants must have a combined minimum annual income of $20,000 to be eligible.

The monthly payment is based upon 100% financing repaid in 60 monthly installments based on the chart below and includes the 1% guarantee fee. The interest rate is variable, subject to change each month.
